"Great films rarely arrive as unheralded as The Battle of Chile."

THE BATTLE OF CHILE is one of the true classics of world cinema, a remarkable documentary that chronicles Chile's peaceful socialist revolution, led by its democratically-elected President, Salvador Allende, and the violent counterrevolution against it that put in power dictator Augusto Pinochet.

The film was hailed on its original release by Pauline Kael in The New Yorker as "Spectacular... a major film" and described by Judy Stone in The San Francisco Chronicle as "A landmark in the presentation of a living history on film."

ROCKY ROAD TO DUBLIN

A Film by Peter Lennon
Cinematography by Raoul Coutard

The last film screened at the Cannes Film Festival in 1968. A provocative, biting portrayal of 1960s Ireland: the stultifying educational system, the repressive, reactionary clergy, and the myopic cultural nationalism.

Featuring the inspired photography of legendary French cinematographer Raoul Coutard, and interviews with writers Sean O'Faolain and Conor Cruise O'Brien.

"Magnificent! One of the most beautiful documentaries the cinema has given us."

-Cahiers du Cinéma

Bonus: THE MAKING OF ROCKY ROAD TO DUBLIN, a 27 minute documentary reuniting Peter Lennon and cinematographer Raoul Coutard, who recount the making of their then controversial but now classic film.
