After a successful theatrical release, Icarus Films are proud to release LEVEL FIVE on home video on October 7th. Chris Marker's shock-to-the-senses mind-melter concerns a woman (Catherine Belkhodja) haunted by the loss of her lover while working on programming a video game about World War II's Battle of Okinawa. Merging retro-futuristic sci-fi imagery, references to American film noir, and reflections on traumas in Japanese history into a visually and philosophically provocative puzzle, LEVEL FIVE is a hallucinatory visual essay on memory, tragedy, and early digital culture.
