

MARX RELOADED is a cultural documentary that examines the relevance of German socialist and philosopher Karl Marx's ideas for understanding the global economic and financial crisis.

The recent crisis triggered the deepest global recession in 70 years and prompted the US government to spend more than 1 trillion dollars in order to rescue its banking system from collapse. Today the full implications of the crisis in Europe and around the world still remain unclear. Nevertheless, should we accept the crisis as an unfortunate side-effect of the free market? Or is there another explanation as to why it happened and its likely effects on our society, our economy and our whole way of life?

- May 2018 is the bicentennial of Karl Marx
- Bonus feature: MARX FOR BEGINNERS, a 6 minute short by Bob Godfrey
- Features leading Marxist philosophers including Antonio Negri and Slavoj Zizek
